

Endorsement for Paul Richmond, U.S. Congressional Candidate
By John Titus,
Writer, Activist, Homestead Farmer

Paul Richmond and I met in an exciting time; The exit from office of George Bush Senior, and the entrance of Bill Clinton. Both of us were involved in a study group of activists and civic watchdogs that had access to media in radio, alternative publications and cable television. Paul was the genius behind a series of cable television shows in Portland that featured lectures and filmed public events. These included questionable behavior witnessed during police arrests during supposed drug raids, and large demonstrations when the senior President Bush or members of his administration were on speaking tours in Portland. The work that Paul did successfully drew the attention of the mainstream media, forcing these issues further into the public eye.

But Paul was to set his sights even higher. He successfully put himself through law school and became an advocate for victims of police abuse, most famously during the World Trade Organization protests in Seattle.

While looking out for the interests of citizens, Paul also developed a strong rapport with the Police in both Seattle and Portland. He worked in a cooperative manor to improve the interaction between police and citizens, while striving to uphold peoples constitutional rights.

In this time of illegal wiretaps of citizens, outright fraud by energy brokers, the loss of the most basic right of Habeous Corpus and countless other outrageous actions by the current administration, Paul Richmond is the kind of candidate we need in Congress today.

I strongly urge voters to support Paul Richmond for Congress,

John Titus