Grass Roots Blossom for Sarah Palin

Colorado Springs, CO--December 13, 2008 “Sarah Palin groups have sprung up like wild flowers across the nation,” says David Kelly, media director for the 2012 Draft Sarah Committee (www.2012draftsarahcommittee.com).

Many other groups have blossomed on the Internet. They include Team Sarah (<http://www.teamsarah.org/>), Draft Palin for President (www.draftpalinforpresident.com) Moms for Sarah Palin (www.momsforsarahpalin.com). Numerous other groups and blogs are now on the Internet.

“The objective of the 2012 Draft Sarah Committee is to have organizers in every state of the union, plus many at the local level,” says David Kelly, media director for the committee. “We have seventeen listed on our website and about seventeen more prospective organizers. These organizers will be able to reach local Republicans and influence the 2012 election, starting now.”

Mr. Kelly says, “We have about nine thousand on our mailing list and are working hard to add additional names.”

Mr. Kelly says, “These groups have a similar message for their members; let’s encourage Sarah to run in 2012. We want to let her know that we are here to support her efforts in reforming the Republican Party and winning the 2012 election. Sarah’s popularity along with her core Conservative values has been the driving force behind our support.”

Although their message is the same, their methods are quite diverse. Some groups are solely Internet based, some are clubs, and others are grass roots oriented. The 2012 Draft Sarah Committee (2012DSC) is the only one that is currently registered with the FEC as a political action committee.
